

State Investments Are Working to End Homelessness in CT

Homelessness is an unacceptable and expensive problem, but one we have proven that we can solve. Investments in coordinated access, rapid re-housing, permanent supportive housing, and affordable housing are paying off, with progress to end homelessness in Connecticut.

9,478 people experienced homelessness across Connecticut in 2017, a decrease of 34% since 2012.

End Homelessness Among Youth and Families with Children by the End of 2020

Reduce Barriers to Child Care for Families with Children Experiencing Homelessness

Families with young children need immediate access to child care to secure housing, find employment, and achieve stability for their children. Providing a 90-day grace period for child health documentation (i.e., immunizations and health form) required by child care licensing regulations would allow for immediate enrollment of homeless children in a licensed child care setting.

Identify and Educate Unaccompanied Youth Experiencing Homelessness

Education is a key foundational component to keeping youth out of homelessness and preventing future episodes of homelessness. By improving identification and affirming protections that allow homeless students to stay in school, we can move the needle toward our goal of ending youth homelessness by the end of 2020. Education school staff about these protections is critical. This can be accomplished by affirming in state law existing requirements for school districts to train staff about the signs of homelessness, the legal protections for homeless students (including immediate enrollment provisions under federal law), and the resources available to help meet the needs of these vulnerable young people.

Reaching Home is the campaign to prevent and end homelessness in Connecticut. With more than 200 participating organizations representing a variety of sectors, Reaching Home works to develop public policies, community support, and resources that will bring an end to homelessness in Connecticut.
